- IV. Special Presentations
 - Transportation Services Advisory Board (TSAB)
 - Vardner said that TSAB had its first meeting at the beginning of November. He said that since last year there have been some changes in the Transportation Services portion of the university. He said that Mark Stocki is no longer the director of Transportation Services. He said that Renee Fortier is now in charge. He said that Sam Morabito is no longer the Vice Chancellor directly in charge of the division. He said that the parking space waiting list is now down to 2,782 and that 1,000 spaces have been opened up. He said that UCLA has an agreement with the city of Los Angeles to limit the amount of traffic into UCLA and the number of parking spaces at UCLA. He said that the number of vehicles entering and exiting UCLA is supposed to be 139,500. He said that at this time there are 122,000 visits. He said that the number of parking spaces is capped at 25,169 and that, currently, there are 25,016. He said that means there will be 153 spaces left for expansion after the current parking lot construction is completed. He said the priority order for parking spaces goes to faculty, staff, graduate students and undergrads. He said that only 1 in 9 people on campus are eligible for parking. He said that one of the main issues for TSAB is the BruinGo! program. He said that originally the program was set up as a grant from the city of Los Angeles. He said that, when that grant ended, the Chancellor allocated money from his discretionary fund to keep it going for another year. He said the Chancellor set two requirements for Transportation Services to find a funding source to continue the program: first, that parking permits could not be the only funding source, and, second that the funding source must be sustainable. He said the solution that Transportation Services decided on was to pay two-thirds of the cost from their own funds and have a 25-cent co-payment for each use of a bus by students. He said that they have now stopped looking for other funding sources. He said that while they are happy with this arrangement, he is not. He said that the only option Transportation Services has offered to ameliorate the co-payment is to offer a flash card. He said the only type of flash card they are offering is one that is priced as if the purchaser rode the bus everyday, including finals week. He said that TSAB asked if it could be set up through a Bruin Card system that would charge the fee to the students BAR account, but that system would be too costly.

- Palma/Saracho asked if the BruinGo! program would be available on weekends and holidays.
- Vardner said that it would not be. He said that one Culver City bus line will be added to the service, but Transportation Services has not decided if it will add any MTA lines. He said UCLA will also be starting a FlexCar service, which will provide cars for hourly rental. He said that three cars will be available at $7.50 an hour for anyone over 21 years old. He said that they are currently looking for an insurance carrier that will allow people under 21 to use the cars.
- Nelson said that TSAB may want to look into the safety record of the students who use the CPO vans. He said that they are not all over 21 and may have a good safety record.
- Vardner thanked Nelson and said that he would look into that.
- Saldaña asked if students could use their own insurance to drive the cars.
- Vardner said that the program doesn't handle it that way because of safety concerns. He said that any student doing that would have to carry their insurance information with them. He said that TSAB will be meeting again in early January.

UC Regents Meeting

- McKesey distributed copies of an official statement which was addressed to the Board of Regents from the Affirmative Action Coalition.
- Nguyen asked if point number three should read that they demand that the Regents not implement enrollment caps.
- McKesey said that that was a mistake.
- Husse-Jerome asked if they would just be making a statement or if there were other plans.
- McKesey said that the Affirmative Action Coalition would be placing an advertisement in the Daily Bruin.
- Nelson said that the UCPD has a different perspective on the fourth statement. He said that there may be a response from them to that statement.
- Schreiber asked if the UCPD had been contacted about statement four.
- McKesey said that they have not been contacted yet, but that they could be contacted in the future.
- Nelson said that he only mentioned it because that issue might sidetrack what the Affirmative Action Coalition is trying to accomplish.
- McKesey said that she would follow up on that issue.
