IV. Public Comments

A. Coreen Weintraub—CALPIRG

Weintraub thanked the council for passing the resolution in favor of increasing the CALPIRG pledge fee last week. She said that the organization is moving forward and is now hoping to pass a resolution with the Graduate Students Association next week. Yesterday was the state-wide lobby day at which CALPIRG advocated for Cal Grants, Health Care, and to save the Oceans. Finally, the organization is working to pass Global Warming legislation, which would be the first on the national level.

V. Special Presentations

A. Daily Bruin—Samantha Schaefer and Alene Tchekmedyian

-The two editors attended the meeting this evening to discuss errors made in the evaluation of USAC Council members, Cinthia Flores and Addison Huddy. Tchekmedyian said that a correction will be run in the newspaper tomorrow morning.

-Li asked how the error occurred.

-Schaeffer said the incorrect evaluation was the result of a printing error, claiming that the correct evaluation created electronically was not conveyed in the print version.

-Bawa asked who approved the graphic that went to print.

-Schaeffer said that errors are bound to happen in journalism and stated that the error has been corrected. She did not provide a name.

-Bawa again asked Schaefer who approved the item to go to print, and said that errors should be corrected on the page on which it was printed originally.

-Tchekmedyian said that notification of the correction will be run on the second page. She apologized for the error.

-Tressel asked the editors to describe the error printed in the Daily Bruin.

-Schaefer said that Huddy and Flores' evaluation marks were incorrect.

-Flores asked how the evaluation process is conducted.

-Schaeffer said that reporters have attempted to conduct weekly interviews with council members and have also kept records of the council meetings. This compilation was used to evaluate the candidates.

-Tressel noted that most, if not all, the offices represented on USAC have accomplished many initiatives not discussed while they were campaigning last year. Tressel asked the Daily Bruin why they didn't evaluate those significant accomplishments.

-Tchekmedyian said that reporters have done their best to report on additional projects created by council members over the past year, but added that the evaluation section in the newspaper today solely reported on the platform promises made by council members when campaigning last year.

-Bawa said that she is not satisfied with the correction being reported on the second page.

-Mullins said that Tengco received a green in the same category that Huddy received a yellow.

-Schaeffer said that Tengco received a green evaluation mark because of a specific clothing drive held.

-Tressel noted that the Daily Bruin used to feature a USAC navigation button on the home page but no longer does so. He also noted that it is very difficult to find articles related to USAC. He asked if the Daily Bruin could add a direct link to USAC related news.

-Tchekmedyian said that the Daily Bruin back-end website program does not allow them to make any changes to the front-end and that's why there is no USAC link anymore.

-Nelson said that the Undie Run was not supposed to take place until the end of this quarter. He recommended that reporters speak with council members to discuss events and scheduling.

-Tengco said that individual platforms are not to be discussed at the table. He asked to focus on questions about the entire graphic.

-Faenlar asked if the lack of clarification between Qualified parties (Students First and SERVE) could be reflected more accurately in the print issue tomorrow.

-Tchekmedyian said that a text correction will be included, but the graphic will not be replaced.

-Farmer said that it is troubling that a graphic which is being considered significantly by readers is not being replaced entirely. He said that the mistakes made should accurately be corrected.

-Tchekmedyian said that the editors feel that the graphic would take the place of other important stories.

-Farmer said that while front page articles are reserved for current events, placing the correction on the second page will only partially correct the negative impact of the first print.

-Tep said that she would like to call the neutrality of the evaluation process into question.

-Schaeffer said that the contacts between council members and reporters have been reflected accurately.

-Flores asked if it is the responsibility of council members or of the reporters to maintain a consistent form of communication.

-Schaeffer said that the reporting is accurate and that the reports made are consistently shared between the staff.

-Li asked if there is a way to include a more holistic view of additional work done by offices.

-Tchekmedyian feels that the evaluation performed was holistic because it was a joint effort.

-Li said that she was alluding to a more comprehensive form of evaluation for the council.

-Flores echoed Li's sentiments regarding a need for a deeper evaluation.

-Farmer asked if a full correction will be made.
-Tchekmedyan said that questions regarding individual platforms can be submitted to the editor. She said that further explanations of work can be sent to the editors as well. Any information not reflected can be provided into the viewpoint section of the newspaper.
-Farmer asked if it is possible to print a smaller print version of the before and after graphics.
-Bawa appreciated the individual report for her office, and asked the newspaper editors to consider the evaluation process deeply. She said that she has also seen inserts incorporated into the paper, and suggested providing a full correction in an insert form. She said that a fragmented correction is not adequate, in her opinion.
-Flores said that she feels that the report seen in the newspaper today might form misconceptions of the work done by her office. She said that she will be meeting directly with Tchekmedyan and Schaeffer about the issue, but said that she is also in favor of a more comprehensive form of evaluation.
-Mullins began to pose a question, however Tchekmedyan stated that she will not entertain the question at this meeting, as per her request at the beginning. Mullins attempted to offer the question. Tengco called a point of order to honor the reporter's unwillingness to entertain the question raised by Mullins.
-Nguyen feels that the reporters attended the meeting to explain the error. He said that any further questions should be brought to them at a later time.
-Tengco thanked the reporters for attending, and said that he understands the fact the errors do occur. He said that questions about evaluations for individual offices should be shared with the Daily Bruin reporters at a later time.

B. Ballot Order Presentation—Hector Lucero

-Lin moved and Farmer seconded to move the approval of the ballot order approval to this point of the agenda.
-Lucero said that the order of the ballot was decided by random selection.
-Lin moved and Farmer seconded to approve the order of the ballot presented.
-The order of the USAC elections ballot was approved unanimously, to be reflected on MyUCLA as seen bellow. The vote consisted of 10 in favor, 0 in opposition, and 0 abstentions. Tengco was not in the room at the time of the vote.

-Bawa asked when Enemuoh Chiamaka Sandra was reincorporated back into the ballot, and asked if this decision is cleared with the election code.
-Lucero gave the candidate a deadline to bring a doctors note to verify her inability to attend the mandatory Orientation meeting.
-Farmer moved and Mullins seconded to approve the names to be listed on the ballot on MyUCLA.
-The council voted to approve the names to be listed on the official ballot. The final vote was 10 in favor, 0 in opposition, and 1 abstention.
