IV. Public Comment
   Velazquez
   Radha Patel: “Hi everyone, it’s Radha the CALPIRG chapter chair, hope you are not having too stressful of a midterm season right now. I just wanted to give my quick CALPIRG update. So last week we had our kickoff meeting where we launched all of our campaigns and reached our goal of 100 people and got 128 students there. It is super exciting to see all of the excitement for student activism on our campus. It really is what makes a grassroots organization like ours really successful. This week we started our funding drive. We are funded by students who pledged to add the 10$ per term fee and we are currently 35,000 members strong across teh state. Every year we need to sign up 10% of the student body per our contract with the university. We are pledging on our campaign to get the state to ban single use plastics following in the UC steps to protect our environment and our health. Our goal for this quarter is to sign up 1000 new members and so far we are on track to hitting that. Thank you.”

   Abeeha Hussain: “Hello, My name is Abeeha. I use she/her pronouns. And today I just wanted to hop on and share the importance of the Transfer Student Center. It is located in Kerckoff 128 and is across the hall from the BBRC which I also think is a topic of discussion today. I am a staff member there so I have been working there in person since Spetember or so and I have been able to meet 100’s of transfer students and help them with simple questions, complex questions and been able to point them in the direction of to get answers to questions we may not be able to answer. We have helped students with studying. We have an entire room where we play lofi music and it is a amazing place to join and we have events nearly every single week. And I think this shows the importance of the Transfer Student Center for the transfer student community specifically. As Herman alaways talks about, the transfer community is very intersectional. We have commuter students, parenting students, people who are part of the diasbaled community and things like that. So all of these people come together into this very intersectional space called the Transfer Student Center. Advocating for permanent funding will just further help us that this space will say available for students in the future. It will help make sure that the assistant director has a job next year and our other staff members at the TSC will be able to greet you all with smiles if anyone decides to drop by. Thank you.”

- Zulieka Bravo: “Hi everyone. I am so happy to be here and share space with you all. I am here to talk about the EARN Referendum. I just want to express my gratitude for this referendum. It is something that is such an important issue and as a former transfer and a former coach of the TSC, an issue that we have been fighting for awhile is permanent funding. Lack of funding does not allow us to properly support our community. And I am pretty sure that the same case goes for the BBRC. These communities have been underrepresented, underfunded for far too long and I am in full support of this referendum. I just want you all to keep in mind, learning from the CUB Referendum as a former coauthor of the CUB referendum. I think one of the things we fell short on was working in community. I want to emphasize to try to work in community as much as possible. Make sure that the communities represented by this referendum are also a part of the process and a part of the campaign. So yeah, I just wanted to emphasize that and show my support and I am really excited about this. It is something that needs to be done. So thank you for bringing this forth and I am looking forward to this hopefully being passed. Thank you.”

- Justin Rodriguez: “Hello, my name is Justin Rodriguez and I am the internal chair for the mother org MECHA. I here in strong support for the BBRC surplus proposal and the EARN Referendum which will bring funding to the BBRC and TSC. I want to say and bring this issue up. Both of these communities face retention and graduation issues still in 2022 despite all of the resources that UCLA has at its disposal. Black students especially have a long history on this campus for advocating for SPACE and for services to make sure black students can be retained and the BBRC was one of their victories after years of organizing. It is important that these spaces are funded and that they are governed by students both from black and transfer communities. As we move back to campus it will be more important than ever for students to have resources like these on campus. A space to be with others, community, regular programming, counseling services are vital for retention and survival of communities on this campus. Again I am in strong support of the EARN Referendum and the surplus proposal. Thank you.”

- Sachi Cooper: “Hi everyone, happy Tuesday. I am just here with two separate but important updates. One from CS Mini Fund. Those applications are due this Friday, Jan 28. Hearings will be Week 5. I have a little Instagram graphic so if any of your offices want to post that that would be greatly appreciated. We are trying to get as many people as possible to apply. So please apply and if you have any questions you can hit me up and I will help you with any questions you may have. The LA Metro scoping period for the the Sepulveda Transit Corridor project is ending on Feb 11th. I believe that is in 16 days. So time is really ticking to submit public comment. I was able to give public comment and mention that USAC headvoted in favor of a resolution. GSA just voted unanimously in favor of a similar resolution. But I think it is really important for Metro to hear from you as Council members and from people in your offices. Hearing that kind of unique perspective from a variety of reasons why a UCLA metro stop would be important will be helpful in their process so I will drop the link to the SSCC for all website which has an abundance of information and how to submit public comment. But it is super critical, you can just use the template if you don't want to craft your own. But please do so. Thank you.”

- Public Comment concluded at 7:17pm.

BBRC Presentation

- Simone Anderson: “Hey you guys. Today I am here to talk to you about the BBRC. I know I came to a couple other meetings last quarter and it is still the same old story. Black students are still lacking resources. The black community is severely underfunded. Like we talked about earlier how vital reenteion and access resources are. Currently we are being told as ASU by Vice Chancellor Gordon and the Chancellor that there is not enough space in the BBRC for our projects to operate as well as because of the student initiated task force that mother orgs are currently protesting because there is no student representation and there is no ability for students to make decisions for our projects. It is keeping our projects retention and access resources from going in there. SHAPE was not able to conduct a single site that is our access project and for the first time it did not operate for a whole quarter for the first time in 26 years because of what’s going on, because of what the Chancellor has allowed to go on with black students, staff and the CPO. Black students aren’t safe and they haven’t been safe for a long time and now it is affecting our community. It is affecting ASP’s ability to counsel. That is our retention project. It meant that when ASP was in counseling until week 6 of the fall quarter meant that Black students were going without academic supports. Students that were dismissed were not being let back into the university. Students that were AA and on the verge of dismissal and were unfortunately dismissed. We are losing black students because we are not given the money or the environment that we need to be successful and that we need to administer these resources to black students. I don't know how many students out there because SHAPE couldn't give a site unfortunately werent even able to apply to UCLA because we weren't able to help them with their college applications. That's how important that these resources are. AEP, our community service project didn't get to have a site this year. We usually work with kids in Compton and host Saturday school for them. We help them with school, with everything and just being there that mentorship especially with covid right now I don't know what is happening with these families. A whole community that we are disconnected from. These resources are important and right now I need you guys to see the value in them because unfortunately administration doesn't. They don't see the value of student initiated and student run projects resources organizations like mother orgs like CRC and SIOC projects like access and retention projects. So I am here today asking for our surplus proposal of $230,00 dollars for the BBRC. It is lacking space. We can only have programs that fit up to 45 students right now in the BBRC and we have over 1500 students in the black community right no in our general body. We are at 4%. We can't fit more than 45 people in there. There are no resources in there. Right now it is like a lounge. People just come in and sit there studying. It is just another hub for students to sit there and do work but there is no resources for them to use, no food for them to eat. There's no jobs, no tutoring, nothing and Vice Chancellor Gordon and Gene Block are just sitting there doing articles and talking about how well-funded the BBRC is and it has created an illusion that black students are adequately supported and we are not. We are not. I need you guys to come together and support these black students on your campus. Last year everybody was talking about Black Lives matter and rising to the challenge. The chancellor has failed to rise to the challenge. The politics have been performative. He hasn't even rescheduled his meetings with Black Alliance. He hasn't even met with me yet as ASU chair. All the things going on with CPO, he hasn't talked to me since September. Black students have continued to be harmed by the CPO and now the space that the black resource center that was created to house them is being told that they can't go to because it is just not enough space. Monroe told them they can work in the corner. Any instructive student workers professional staff in the BBRC to not help these projects to not help black students. Aint that something. So more than ever black student on this campus need your support. We need more space. Students need scholarships and students need to be able to get these services to black students on this campus and to the community of Los Angeles. There are other community service initiatives. All sorts of programs that sit with them, so it is not ASU staff that is being hurt, it is our general body, all these black students on campus that are being hurt. The Harambe Council is home to 28 student initiated and student run organizations run by black students and they are supposed to have access to the BBRC. They are supposed to be able to program, they need funding for programming. They have resources that they provide. ASU is a very collaborative and communal space. Staff, faculty what about all of our stake holders. What about our annual events? What about our beloved community initiative? What about things like that that ASU supports that promotes community for all students of color. This is a threat to student initiated and student run. It is a threat to student empowerment. It is a threat to all students. And look how it is harming black students because we haven’t had the decision making ability to provide resources for ourselves or make decision or choose where this money goes or what being spent where. Right now more than ever, black students really need support and not just this one time allocation but obviously continual support as we continue to grow and the black student population at UCLA continue to grow, as students are doing accession retention services and we continue to grow the Black Bruin Community. The BBRC will constantly need money. It will need consistent economic support. And that is why we are here to talk to you today about the EARN Referendum which we will talk about later. How do we not just right now in the moment, but how do we continue to support black students on this campus because there hasn’t been enough support for black students on this campus. Thank you.”

TSC Presentation  Chavez

- What is the TSC?
  - Housed on the first floor of Kerckhoff between Student Media and the Veteran Center and across from the Black Bruin Resource Center, the Transfer Student Center is under Student Affairs and serves the needs of the transfer community.
  - The TSC offers operations, programming, and services to enhance the experience of UCLA transfers.

- What does the TSC do?
  - Provides resources for transfer students, including parking permits, food vouchers, & more
  - Provides a Mentorship program and a Volunteering program for transfers
  - Manages official social media presence for UCLA transfers, including around admissions
  - Hosts CAPS twice a week in the TSC to provide easier access to the transfer community
  - Programs National Transfer Student Week, Bruin Transfer Pride Week, & Transfer Graduation
  - And, vitally, provides a safe physical space for transfer students to study, receive support, and come into community with other transfers.

- A Brief History of TSC:
  - The TSC is still fairly new in UCLA’s history and is the product of student organizing.
  - Transfer Student Program, the first UCLA program for transfers, was established in 2009 under the Bruin Resource Center
  - Transfer Leadership Coalition and Transfer Student Representative organized for the TSC to become a center, and it was finally given a physical space in Kerckhoff in 2017

- Why Transfers Need Support:
  - Retention Concerns
    - 2-year transfer graduation rate: 70.9 vs. 4-year freshman graduation rate: 82.3%
  - Overcoming Community College Stigma
    - 24%-30% of the undergraduate population
    - 93% come from 101 CA CCs
  - Intersectional Identities
    - Parenting Students
    - Veterans
    - System Impacted/Formerly Incarcerated
    - First Gen, and More
    - Lack a sense of belonging and that they matter to the University
      - Ie, “the Housing Crisis”
    - Adjusting to the quarter system
- Work loads, connecting with professors, & large class size
  - Finding/Using campus resources
- Resources and opportunities weren’t created with transfers in mind
  - Balancing Responsibilities
  - Financial issues
  - Covid-19

- Why does the TSC Need Funding?:
  - The Transfer Student Center has no permanent funding.
  - All funding at this time are temporary funds from Student Affairs, SFAC, or Development. The amounts change year per year.
  - Out of its nine student staff, one assistant director, and one director, only the director job has guaranteed funding. All other positions in the TSC can be removed and unfunded at any time.
  - The TSC is still being required to pay off its rent for our space in Kerckhoff. That means that even with the temporary funds, not all of it can go to transfer services because a portion is forcibly allocated to paying off the rent that UCLA itself provides.

- Without permanent funding, the Transfer Student Center is in danger of its staff, services, and even space being cut at the whims of the temporary funds.
- The TSC needs stronger financial independence in order to ensure that it can serve UCLA’s large transfer community of over 7,000 students.
- The full and immediate independence of the Transfer Student Center of all future monthly rent payments, which costs roughly $70,000 dollars a year. Once this rent is accounted for, the Transfer Student Center can reallocate this money that would have otherwise been used for rent to pay for new programming and support for transfer students and commuters.
- Providing Resources for Transfer Students:
  - With this funding, the Transfer Student Center can rely on permanent funds to ensure that it will always operate to serve the transfer community.
  - Independence from rent would allow the TSC to focus on its service to transfers
  - After the rent is paid off, the funds would allow the TSC to increase its services to support more transfer students, including transfer organizations

  - No opposition, Katrina Herera is appointed to SACBOG as a consent item.

  - No opposition, Anise Tyehimba is appointed to SACBOG as a consent item.

VIII. Officer Reports

A. President Velazquez
  - An epidemiologist came on campus this past week for a meeting with administration. Admin tried to push having students on campus despite the epidemiologist's concerns about expected student mortality.
  - Administration said that their choice to go back to campus was affected by Stanford and Claremont McKenna’s choices to go back in person, however it is important to note that both of these schools are about 1/3 of the size of UCLA and do not face the same risks that UCLA does.
  - Had a meeting with the Council of Presidents and what each university is doing to provide hybrid options for students. After hearing everyone’s responses, I believe that UCLA is doing the least.
At this point in time, I really need us as a council to come together and activate on pushing for hybrid options for the student body.
- DSU and my office are planning a strike that will most likely happen on Monday. Hopefully we can get students involved to show administration and professors how important this issue is.
- Principals and Response meeting, there should be an email going out to student body about next steps and how students can advocate to chancellor
- Movement from MO students about CPO, there will be MO town hall this Friday from 5-6:30pm, please show up we want to pay attention to all the stuff that administration has been putting under the rug

Foster Youth Emergency Scholarship Valles

- Foster Youth Disparities:
  - With the multiple transitions from in-person to online, former foster youth at UCLA have faced additional challenges. Only 3-5% of foster youth as a whole earn a Bachelor’s Degree. In comparison to a 91% graduation rate at UCLA, only 60% of former foster youth entering UCLA as freshman graduate within 4 years; and 77% graduating within 6 years. As the UCLA Newsroom puts it, “Foster students face additional challenges to learning — needing to work more hours than other students in order to cover tuition costs, for example, or having to find housing during school holidays. The COVID-19 pandemic has only exacerbated those hardships.” In addition, 22% of CA foster youth had experienced homelessness due to the COVID-19 pandemic, while 68% said the pandemic impacted their housing situation.*

- Self-Defined Emergency Needs:
  - We hope this fund will cover a variety of self-defined emergency needs including:
    - Housing security
    - Loan repayments
    - Food security
    - Access to technology, school, and lab supplies for school
    - Access to medical services
    - Unemployment
    - Access to transportation
And more

- How many students are former foster youth at UCLA?
  - Roughly 300 students at UCLA identify as former foster youth out of UCLA’s 44,589 undergraduate and graduate students, making up less than 1% of the student population. These students come from a wide variety of backgrounds, examples including: kinship care, group homes, unaccompanied minors, guardianship care, etc… Despite making up such a small percentage of the UCLA population, foster youth students are 2.5-3x as likely to not graduate and have significantly less access to resources that will improve their academic performance.

- Distribution Funds:
  - After conversations with Paolo Velasco, Director of the Bruin Resource Center, the Bruin Resource Center will receive the sum of funding allocated, follow our established guidelines and method of payment, and allocate the funding accordingly to Bruin Guardian Scholars Program members after reviewing each request.

- How Students Can Request Funds:
  - Bruin Guardian Scholars are currently able to apply for emergency scholarships using a Google Form accessible through the website. The form asks for:
    - Name/UID/Email
    - Amount requested
    - Reason for request
    - Whether or not the student has already utilized the scholarship
    - Other resources the student has accessed to meet their need

- Allocation Ask:
  - With an estimated maximum 75* students who may apply to this scholarship out of the 300 Bruin Guardian Scholars, we are asking that each of these 75 students can have access to funds which will of course vary based on the circumstance of their emergency.
  - With an allocation of $40,000, this will allow each individual to receive $533.33 of the anticipated maximum of 75 applicants; however, we acknowledge that the allocation quantity may vary depending on how many applicants we receive and what their need is which may be lower or more than the $533.33 amount.
  - *Note: The anticipated 75 maximum applicants is based on the number of 31 applicants thus far for BGS’s emergency scholarship for the 2021-2022 school year.

_Student Union Event Fund_

- Background: What is the Student Union Event Fund?
  - The Student Union Event Fund was established in the 1973-74 fiscal year by the ASUCLA Board of Directors. Student Union Event Fund (hereafter referred to as SUE Fund) was designed as a funding source to encourage student programming within the Student Union. This fund allows student organizations to request money for their events that are taking place in UCLa facilities.

- Who Qualifies for SUE Fund?
  - Any student organization registered with UCLA’s Student Organizations, Leadership and Engagement office qualifies for SUE Fund. The event must be initiated, planned, and produced by the sponsoring student organization; SUE Fund will not fund events for university departments, off-campus organizations, or non-student university organizations registered with the Center for Student Programming.

- Which Events Qualify for SUE Fund?
  - Events taking place in ASUCLA event venues and meeting the minimum attendance requirement are eligible to apply for the SUE Fund to cover the cost of a “Basic House Package” is defined as the set up staff, house staff, and technical staff to execute a standard event. The number of staff varies depending on the requirements of the venue. Ackerman Grand Ballroom is eligible for an additional $500 in funding applicable for facility changes such as equipment rentals, security staff, ticket charges, and additional labor charges. Bruin plaza is not an ASUCLA event venue. However, all sound equipment rentals are eligible for the SUE Fund.

- How SUE Fund Receives Funding:
  - The SUE Fund receives funding through student purchases of on campus goods
  - The idea is that students receive something back from their purchases on campus.
  - This year because of campus interruptions, the SUE fund is currently underfunded and will be underfunded during the Spring quarter as students prepare to return to campus and host in person events.
  - Spring quarter is also a quarter that typically has the most events as student organizations wrap up their year.
- Organizations that have Applied for the SUE Fund in last year:
  - Over 1k+ organizations have applied for the SUE Fund this year. Some have been denied because of a lack of funds or administration problems with paperwork.
  - Groups that have applied this year: (Liberty in North Korea, Campus Events Commission, Vietnamese Student Association)

- SUE Fund Deficient:
  - A further look into the remainder of the current year’s budget for SUE Fund in comparison to the budget from the last full year of activity (Academic year 18-19) for the same timeframe.

- Funding Request:
  - The SUE Fund is typically able to budget and give out approximately 149k dollars per academic year to student organizations on campus.
  - This year the funding from SUE Fund is currently sitting around 89k. Which means that the SUE Fund is short approximately 60k due to the pandemic affecting on campus purchases. This has resulted in some student organizations being denied.
  - The office of the GR3 is asking for 48k for the SUE Fund so that students may continue to request and receive funding for upcoming events this upcoming quarter.

- Final Ask: $48,000

BBRC Surplus Proposal

- Background:
  - The Black Bruin Resource Center is the culmination of efforts of Black students on UCLA's campus for decades. Students involved with the Afrikan Black Coalition, a coalition of Black Student Unions across the UC and CSU systems, began calling for Black resource centers at all of their schools in 2015. UCLA first put funding in renovating the Black Forum space in Haines Hall
  - A collaboration with the Bunche Center. In 2018, Student Affairs then created the Black Community Center in Rieber Hall that was used as a programming and study space. After further advocacy for a space more central in location on campus by organizations like the Afrikan Student Union and Black Graduate Students Association at UCLA, the Black Bruin Resource Center was established as a part of his Rising to the Challenge statement in June of 2020.

- Mission of the BBRC:
  - The BBRC is the root of the Black connection and collective effort at UCLA & essential branch of support available to Black UCLA students, staff, and faculty at a departmental and institutional level
  - Provides direct access to resources housed within the space and in different locations on campus
  - Uplifts, supports, and inspires the UCLA Black and African Diaspora Community
  - Cultivates community, family, and power, and serves as a safe space where the Black community can call home and be in community with each other

- Vision of the BBRC:
  - The BBRC is the root of the Black connection and collective effort at UCLA & essential branch of support available to Black UCLA students, staff, and faculty at a departmental and institutional level
  - Provides direct access to resources housed within the space and in different locations on campus
  - Uplifts, supports, and inspires the UCLA Black and African Diaspora Community
  - Cultivates community, family, and power, and serves as a safe space where the Black community can call home and be in community with each other

- Need for Increased Space:
  - Black students do not have an adequate or comprehensive space to house academic and counseling resources, community events and forums
  - The current Center within Kerkhoff does not allow for adequate space to host sites and is not sufficient as an overall safe space for Black Bruins to study, congregate, and exist
  - The current space is 1500 square feet (cost $100k) but has not been sufficient in housing the many programs and resources for Black Bruins and the broader Black community
  - Doubling the square footage to 3000 sq ft ($200k) would allow Black Bruins adequate space to carry out these programs and initiatives, as well as serve as a space that is large enough for all Black Bruins—both current & prospective students, alumni, and faculty—to call home
- Mental Health Resourcing Need:
  - The BBRC aims to support students in response toward the multiple racially motivated crimes that have occurred within UCLA (i.e., police brutality/profiling, discrimination, etc.)
  - The space aims to operate as a meeting location where students who face similar injustices across the UCLA community can coexist in healing and solidarity
  - Given the lack of racially and ethnically diverse CAPS therapists, and due to the criminalization of mental health crises between CAPS and UCPD, it is pertinent that the BBRC be accompanied with adequate mental health resources

- Programming Needs:
  - The BBRC functions as a location for events that serve the broader Black community, including current & potential students, alumni, organizations, etc.
  - Annual events include a welcome event, an open house and end of year event, a Black Mental Health series, Networking in the Black Community series—among a host of other academic programming
  - Other events include ASU general body meetings, Harambee Council meetings, Umbrella organization meetings & events, retention programming, Black programming, Afrograd, events for celebrated holidays (MLK Day and Black History Month)
  - Programming is aimed at centering the needs of Black Bruins.
  - Increased funding for programming would help the BBRC be better equipped to handle issues pertaining to the Black community as they arise.

- Funding Asks:
  - $230,000
  - After discussing with ASU chairperson and staff members, an estimate of $230,000 from the USAC surplus would help fund the BBRC in supporting Black Bruins’ retention and academic success.

Books for Bruins Surplus Proposal

Books for Bruins is a quarterly textbook subsidy program run by the Academic Affairs Commission that is meant to alleviate the financial burden of purchasing increasingly expensive textbooks and materials for classes. Our office understands that rising textbook and academic material costs continue to be a problem for students, especially amid an ongoing pandemic—during which many students have been laid off or are having to work extra jobs to financially support themselves and their families for rent, food, medical expenses, etc. As the scholarship responses and the lived realities of thousands of students reveal, these financial burdens disproportionately affect low-income, non-traditional, and other historically underrepresented communities. Many of the students who applied last quarter and during Winter 2022 have cited their challenging financial situations. However, it is imperative to highlight that even within the discussion of rising costs of academic materials, this issue is divided along the lines of North and South Campus. STEM students are not only purchasing overpriced STEM textbooks, but also clickers, lab coats, goggles, and access codes and subscriptions in order to do their homework. Because of this, AAC has continued to expand the scholarship to cover access codes and other course materials. AAC is asking council members to support an increasingly pertinent initiative that will directly help alleviate some of the burden UCLA students face financially.

Spring Quarter 2021:
  - AAC received 107 applications. We distributed UCLA Store Gift Cards in the following way: 5 $25, 24 $50, 19 $75, 16 $100, 26 $125, 17 $150 for a total of $10,150.

Fall Quarter 2021:
  - AAC received 167 applicants. Awards were distributed via paper checks instead of UCLA gift cards, and funds were awarded to meet need.
  - A total of $17,925 was awarded on Books for Bruins that quarter. AAC was granted $18,825 from surplus for Books for Bruins.

Winter Quarter 2022:
  - AAC received 150 applications. We will be distributing awards via check and UCLA gift cards.
  - We estimate using approximately $16,600 this quarter, including the leftover amount from Fall 2021.
Spring Quarter 2022:

- It is estimated that AAC will receive about 155 applications.
- We estimate using approximately $17,000 this quarter.

With these numbers, we are requesting $33,600 in order to help cover the expected costs.

Quint Basic Needs Care Packages

- In 2020, USAC Student Wellness Commissioner Mihika established a quarterly Basic Needs Subsidy to meet the basic essentials of students during the onset of COVID-19. Before the Basic Needs Subsidy, SWC would occasionally offer packages/kits as a programmatic activity.

- Currently, Students apply to a fairly lengthy application with three short-answer questions! After applying, they'll have to go buy the products themselves and then get reimbursed. Entails keeping their receipt and doing a requisition form. And then wait weeks to get their money refunded. Due to this process, only 159 out of 250 actually completed the Subsidy process. Our Basic Needs Subsidy Team (a team of 5) had to process 250 applications during midterms-finals week (also excessive labor for SGA). As recognition of the Subsidy grows, we need a more effective, less time-intensive way to meet the health & wellness needs of students. Compared to the Spring 21 Subsidy, we received 100 more applicants in Fall 2021.

- The Student Wellness Commission wants to continue reimagining ways that we could help students meet their basic needs -- especially since the Basic Needs Subsidy is a fairly popular and well-known resource.

- The former model worked for our 100% virtual format, but the reimbursement process is too laborious on the student body, SWC Basic Needs Subsidy team, and SGA.

- This new model will provide students with an easily accessible/overall easier method to access their basic needs/essentials.

- Unlike previous, historical iterations of the Subsidy, this model still maintains personalization/tailored resources (found in the Subsidy) while eliminating the labor (ie. reimbursement aspect of the Subsidy) on students

- SWC will alleviate the burden from students by overseeing all shipping/handling/inventory count/bulk ordering of all basic needs essentials. Students can then pick up the items directly from the SWC office and possibly connect with the plethora of SWC/campus resources.

- Our Plan:

- SWC Basic Needs Subsidy Committee will now be nested under Bruin Necessities for stability and continuity. Thus, our current vision is to expand access to basic needs resources through this committee, which will be responsible for the assembly and distribution of basic needs care packages.

- Bruin Necessities has a track record of meeting basic needs of students (including the leading the fight for the institutionalization of menstrual hygiene products - a project that has been completed; providing free oral health screenings, free menstrual hygiene products on the Hill)

- This committee of Bruin Necessities will be distributing a Google form to students in which they can request up to 7 full-size basic needs products, including cleaning products and hygiene products (for menstrual hygiene products, students can receive up to 10 basic needs products).

- The Basic Needs Committee would package the kits and store them at the Student Wellness Commission office, a central location on campus for students to easily access these essential products.

- This updated means of distributing basic needs would save students from having to purchase products with their own money and waiting for reimbursement checks, it would also allow them much quicker access to basic needs products, which are essential to student success.

- Total Cost and Requested Amount:
  - In Fall 2021, $15,631.15 was spent on basic needs for 159 students. Most of our money for basic needs is depleted because of the office budget cuts, the unexpected large number of Basic Needs Subsidy applicants, and the hundreds of projects executed by the 11 committees of SWC.

  - Due to the ever-evolving nature of surplus, we do not want to rely on surplus for this project long-term. However, we need Surplus this year to continue meeting the basic needs of students through this new model.

  - Since the following years will have this new model, we can allocate our Student Wellness Commission + Bruin Necessities fees to tailor to this new model in the beginning of the next academic year.
- By funding this project, you'll be helping us provide an avenue for students to access basic needs without institutional barriers.

- We are requesting $20,000 based on the amount we spent on the F21 Basic Needs Subsidy ($15,631.15) and the predicted amount that will need to be spent for students that need their products shipped to them.

Capital Contingency Computers
- Kerckhoff Hall Computers:
  There are apparently 6 computers in Kerckhoff Hall that are outdated and need to be removed. Some:
  - Do not turn on
  - Have outdated processing systems
  - Are a security risk as they no longer receive consistent updates from Apple

  The computer in the Finance Committee/BOD office is one such example. Although it still turns on and functions properly, it is a 2014 model and the tech team has deemed it a potential security risk to UCLA’s systems. Therefore, it will be taken away soon :'(

- Therefore, Capital Contingency needs to be prepared to help fund the office's new computers, especially as student groups return to Kerckhoff Hall after nearly two years of online instruction and begin to clean out their office.
  - Costs:
    - The cheapest iMac on the market right now is $1878.15 (as shown on the right). There are also options to get a Mac Mini and hook it up with any monitor, but that is also around $1000.
    - Student groups are also more than welcome to buy non-Apple computers, such as HP which is more affordable (as shown above), but historically, Apple computers have been the most popular.

- Final Ask: $12,000 for 6+ computers
